

DO YOU KNOW

That Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine sold through druggists for woman's weakness and peculiar ailments that does not contain a single quantity of alcohol? It is also the only medicine, especially prepared for the cure of the delicate diseases peculiar to women, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his full confidence, by printing upon each bottle wrapper all the ingredients entering into the medicine. Ask your druggist if this is not true.

"Favorite Prescription," too, is the only medicine for women, all the ingredients of which have the unqualified endorsement of the leading medical writers of the several schools of practice, recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Prescription" is advised. Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free booklet, and read the numerous extracts from standard medical authorities praising the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicine is made, and don't forget that no other medicines put up for sale through druggists for domestic use can show any such professional endorsement. This, of itself, is of far more weight and importance than any amount of so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public in favor of the alcoholic compounds.

The "Favorite Prescription" cures all woman's peculiar weakness and derangements, thus banishing the periodical headaches, backaches, bearing-down distress, tenderness and dragging-down sensations in lower abdomen, accompanied by weakening and disagreeable catarrhal, pelvic drains and kindred symptoms.

Dr. Pierce and his staff of skilled specialists may be consulted free by addressing as above. All correspondence is treated as sacredly confidential. By consulting in this way the disagreeable questionings and personal "examinations" are avoided.

The People's Common Sense Medical Advisor contains some very interesting and valuable chapters on the diseases peculiar to women. It contains over one thousand pages. It is sent post paid, on receipt of sufficient in one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only, or 21 cents for a copy in flexible paper covers, or 31 cents for a cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce as above.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One a laxative, two or three cathartic.

The Newlyweds and The Silver Tray

"I must have cost a lot of money," remarked Mr. Newlywed.

"Yes, it's expensive, but it's quite the ugliest thing I ever saw," murmured Mrs. Newlywed.

"And the Browns have such good taste, as a rule. I'm really surprised that they should have sent such a thing." And both bride and bridegroom surveyed gloomily a silver tray covered with one of those designs that seem to rise up and smite one between the eyes.

"But, then, dear, it's really the only ugly thing we got," comforted the bride, "and think what a terrible collection those Bannermans received! And all the ugliest things were from their richest relatives, too, so they couldn't possibly exchange or hide them away."

"That's true." The bridegroom's gloom lifted. "And, since the Browns have moved west, we can bury this in the back yard, and they'll never be the wiser."

"Bury it!" exclaimed Mrs. Newlywed in shocked tones. "Bury $25 worth of silver, for it must be worth fully that! No; I'll tell you what we'll do." And a frown, the outward and visible sign of an idea, creased the bride's white forehead. "We will give the thing to Lilly Schmidt. You know, she is to be married next week, and Germans like that massive stuff. It's used a great deal abroad. Then we'll spend the money we should have had to pay out for a Schmidt present in buying something really nice for ourselves."

"But it has our monogram engraved on it," objected the bridegroom.

"But it is solid silver, and it will stand having ours erased and another cut in," replied Mrs. Newlywed.

So the bridegroom went downtown next morning armed with the silver tray. He returned with it in the evening.

"My dear, we slandered the Browns," he said. "They haven't such poor taste after all. In fact, they have such excellent taste that they couldn't stand this thing in the house. When I took it to the silversmith he said the monogram had already been erased once and it couldn't be done again."—New York Press.

Had to Crawl.
The vindictive enemy shook his finger in the rich man's face.

"You may be rolling in wealth now," he hissed, "but the time is coming when you will have to crawl—mark ye, crawl!"

Two weeks later the words came true. The rich man bought a hill climbing automobile and had to crawl under it every two or three miles to make repairs.—Judge.

She Knew Him.

An architect remarked to a lady that he had been to see the great nave in the new church. The lady replied: "Don't mention names. I

A Winged General of the Seas.

One of the most extraordinary specimens of the fish family is the "mam hai guan," or great general of the south sea, an animal of the whole species, which has its home in the Indian ocean. A full grown mam is upward of thirty-five feet in length, pure black in color and has eyes as large as a saucer. Besides the above characteristic features, which may be said to be whale-like, with the exception of the eyes, the mam has two immense tusks which resemble those of the elephant, both in size and color, and two queer winglike membranes extending along its sides from the side fins almost to the tail. The old mam has a curious habit of marshaling their kind to do battle with the whales and the sharks, and old mariners say that they maneuver with so much intelligence and sagacity that they are known to all the islanders by names which signify winged generals, winged warriors or winged chiefs of the seas.

The Heliotrope.

Although the heliotrope is a tender plant, extremely sensitive to cold, it is one of the best plants for cultivation indoors. It seems to have few diseases and is usually free from insect enemies, while with abundant water and sunshine and sufficient artificial heat it will bloom all winter long year after year and is so tenacious of life that when cut down to a mere stick it quickly shoots forth luxuriant new wood. In addition to this the more the plant is pruned the more luxuriantly it blossoms. The blossoms should be cut with a considerable length of the new wood upon which they grow, and if at once fully immersed in water and then placed deep in a well filled vase they remain fresh and odoriferous for many days. The plant is a little difficult for amateurs to propagate from cuttings, though with plenty of water and sun and some bottom heat the young cuttings quickly root and prosper.

A Pat Reply.

President McKinley once had an applicant for the post of minister to Brazil who brought with him a petition signed by 7,000 Chicagoans. It seems that he was a picture framer, and as he went about canvassing for orders he was in the habit of collecting signatures to his petition. President McKinley listened respectfully to the applicant, questioned him as to his qualifications and finally explained that before he could give the matter serious consideration he would have to confer with the senators and representatives from Illinois.

"You know that we have to select big men for these big places," said the president kindly as he bade his caller goodbye.

"Won't I be just as big as any of 'em if I get the job?" was the retort.

Father of the Weather Bureau.

The father of the weather bureau service was Increase A. Lapham, a modest and retired but ripe scholar, who lived in Milwaukee. He was the first to note by telegraph the progress of the wind currents and storms and to predict their appearance in specified neighborhoods. On the strength of a weather dispatch from Omaha in 1839 or thereabouts he announced the first storm on Lake Michigan that ever was heralded twelve hours in advance of its arrival. The first work of the weather bureau was under his charge in Chicago. It was on the small beginnings of Dr. Lapham that the entire system of the signal service was based. Dr. Lapham died in 1875.

The Dear, Worn Hand.

Few things are capable of touching one with a deeper sense of pathos than the shrunken, blue veined hand of one who is near and dear. Nothing brings a sharper pang of foreboding and a harder lump in the throat than the first time it strikes us that the gentle hand that soothed our childish pains and griefs and has gladly worn away its softness and beauty in our service is thin and withered, with purple veins that stand out like whipcords when it lies at rest. Such a hand ought to look more beautiful to those for whom it has toiled, whose suffering it has charmed away, than the fairest hand ever modeled by a sculptor.

Think the Earth is Hollow.

According to a queer belief in existence among the Icelanders, all waters which flow toward the north are drawn thitherward by a suction created by the oceans tumbling downward through the hollow which, they firmly believe, penetrates our globe from pole to pole. Their authority for this curious belief is the "Utama Saga," a semisacred work, written early in the fourteenth century.

Hope and Joy.

Hope, of all passions most befriends us here. Joy has her tears, and transport has her death. Hope, like a cordial, innocent, though strong, man's heart at once inspirits and serenifies, nor makes him pay his wisdom for his joys.—Young.

She Knew Him.

An architect remarked to a lady that he had been to see the great nave in the new church. The lady replied: "Don't mention names. I

Finnish Marriage Fetes.

Marriage fetes in Finland, as in Norway, are often prolonged for several days, even among folk of humble rank. One peculiarity, which may excite more surprise than approval among eligible suitors in our own country, is that the Finnish lover never himself "pops the question" to the girl of his choice. The momentous proposal is made through a third person, called the "talman," to whom the happy couple give a present when his delicate mediation proves successful and ends in a wedding. Not uncommonly their gift to the talman takes the unromantic form of a shirt.

In like manner the clergyman who presides over the nuptial service receives a simple and inexpensive present, often a handkerchief and a pair of warm hair gloves. A similar gift is bestowed upon the officiating priest at funerals. Upon these mournful occasions the service is exceedingly simple—more so than would satisfy the views of British undertakers—but the burial is, as a rule, followed by large hospitality on the part of the bereaved family.—London Graphic.

An Experiment With Water.

Take a pound of water the temperature of which is 80 degrees C. and mix it with a pound of water at zero, or freezing point. The mixture will make two pounds of water the temperature of which is 40 degrees C.

Now take another pound of water at 80 degrees C. and mix with it a pound of crushed ice—that is, ice crystals—at zero C., the same temperature as the cold water in the first mixture, and the result is that we have two pounds of water at freezing point.

In both cases the weight of water at zero C. introduced into the warm water was the same, but before the ice crystals could assume a liquid condition they had to absorb a certain amount of heat. That heat was drawn from the warm water and consequently reduced its temperature, but it did not raise the temperature of the ice. It simply acted as energy in enabling the ice to become liquid and remained in that liquid in the form of latent heat, to be given up again as soon as the water reassumed a crystalline form.

Wonderful Fiddles.

One of the greatest fiddles that ever were known was to be seen at the French court at the time of Charles IX. This was a viol so large that several boys could be placed inside of it. These boys used to sit inside this queer instrument and sing the airs that the man who handled the bow was playing on the viol outside. The effect is said to have been very beautiful, though it would seem as if the presence of the lads in its interior would seriously interfere with the tone of the "great fiddle," as it was called. Many years after another huge instrument of this kind was used at concerts in Boston. It was so large that to play it the fiddler had to stand on a table to use his bow at the proper point on the strings. This instrument was called "the grandfather of fiddles."

Bread Upon the Waters.

When Victor Hugo was in exile in Brussels he asked Rochefort to stand godfather to his son Charles. Rochefort accepted and in looking for a suitable present saw in a curiosity shop window a silver table ornament which attracted him and which he bought, though the price was 35,000 francs. When after 1870 Rochefort was sent to New Caledonia and his property confiscated Victor Hugo sold the ornament for the benefit of Rochefort's family. It turned out that it was the work of Benvenuto Cellini, and it brought in 200,000 francs.

Fortunate Fasts.

A Jewish newspaper tells the story of a rabbi who expounded and interpreted the Jewish law to the faithful observers for a stipend which a junior clerk would earn. The learned man was asked by a friend how he was getting on. "Slavily," he answered, with a sigh. "If it were not for the numerous fasts which our religion prescribes I am sure my family would die of starvation."

No Cause For Fear.

Husband—That's a foolish habit you women have of carrying your purses in your hands when in the street. Wife—Why is it? Husband—Because a thief could easily snatch them and get away. Wife—Well, if the husbands of other women don't give them any more to put in their purses than you give me to put in mine the thief would starve to death.

A "Character."

In the churchyard of Woolwich, Kent, England, is the epitaph: "Sacred to the memory of Major James Brush, royal artillery, who was killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol by his orderly 14th April, 1831. Well done, good and faithful servant."

Her Method.

Mrs. Wise—The new girl Mrs. Close-keep has got must be a jewel. Mrs. Young—Why, she complains about her more than she did about any of her others. Mrs. Wise—Of course. She wants us all to think that the girl isn't worth enticing away.
